

People I've met through out my life willing wear metaphorical blunders when speaking about how they don't understand how such blatant evil is allowed to happen in our country.

I'll give you one reason.

Mark Middleton, an aide of Bill Clinton and an alleged Epstein-linked fixer was found hanging from a tree with a shotgun-sized hole in his chest. This happening in May of 2022. No gun was found on the property.

His death has been ruled a suicide.

No what ever really transpired isn't being revealed. Do you know how many times it took for that medical report (or whatever terminology is used) to make its way onto paper? How many people turned a blind eye?

So many people talk about they would to a, b, or c if they came across such alleged evil and alleged injustice. The truth of the matter is, you will be surprised by just how much you will shrink back in cowardice when threatened in a manner of x, y, or z.

I understand why one would cower in fear. You love your family. You don't want to see them hurt. But remember this, every time someone lets a bully win, the bully pushes harder and further.

You either become a coward and become weak or let God give you strength. Submit to God therefore. Resist the Devil and he will flee.

Whenever I suggest an idea that isn't approved by the mainstream media and is considered wrong-think, people react in the same way as how suggesting Epstein's Island was real in the 2000s and 2010s. After the last two or three years, you are a coward and a fool to not at least question everything we are told by governments. The behavior of sticking your head in the sand and denying that you are doing it when someone points it out, now, is tantamount to being a perpetrator of evil.

The prejudicial and accusatory behavior of Karen-like Christian's (yes, I used that reference because now you know exactly what kind of toxicity I am referring to) pushed the generation before mine away into wokeism, leftism. Those things employ the same narcissistic rules I saw among toxic and prejudiced people as I was growing up. It is evil now having taken on another form. I also see this in the conservative movement as well.

Don't dare question the narrative excuse that makes us uncomfortable. I don't hate to break it to you. Jesus Christ is King. The closer we draw to Christ, the more we speak objective truth and the enemy doesn't like that. Don't just go to Church and go through the motions. Live as Christ did and show the world that we are more than those like the Westboro Baptist Church that has been plastered on the internet at various points in time.

Does that makes you uncomfortable? Does it sound you pride? Oh well. We all have to get over it. Get on board with God or get out of His way.

"Grifter"

This defense and accusation seems like jealousy. As if, how dare you do this and expose this. It makes me uncomfortable and I want to stay comfortable.

It harkens to Johnny Cash's God's Gonna Cut You Down

Yes, not everything is about money. But we do need money. Or gold. Or silver. People will always use currency; even if it's not paper bills with faces and numbers on them

Being monetarily successful does not make you evil and those who say it does act that way because they desire to have that success without the necessary work and sacrifice and grit. Conversely, there are points in our lives as individuals where the only choice we have is to trust that God will lift us from perdition; especially when all Earthly options have been tried and exhausted.

If I've learned anything in life, people won't admit their mistakes and people won't admit the shit they put in their body may kill them. I'm so done. It looks more and more like Covid and Covid vaccines are the new Agent Orange. It's not like people haven't tried it stopped trying to get justice for those affected by and those who Agent Orange killed. If you're not a prideful idiot, you know who said Agent Orange was safe. Those same people, the government, said that Covid vaccines are safe and that the vaccine "safes lives."
